

VoteWatch Europe prompts practitioners in EU affairs to share their knowledge, experience and stories

Do you have practical experience in EU affairs that is worth exchanging? Would you like to share your views on the most followed platform by the Members of the European Parliament (according to an independent study)?

Then show your expertise and increase your profile!

We are now looking for contributions from practitioners in the form of short articles (1-3 pages). We are also looking for experts to help with their personal insights when building our assessments of influence of the MEPs and Governments in various policy areas (trade, energy, constitutional, etc.).

The articles should address the hot topics on the EU's agenda and they can look into either policy issues (such as digital agenda, energy union, trade policy) or politics (such as the elections in the European Parliament, the Presidency of the EU Council, Brexit, French or German elections, etc).

This call is intended for policy advisers, other professionals working in the EU institutions, consultants, journalists, NGOs and academia.

What to do next? Drop us an email at secretariat@votewatcheurope.eu signalling your interest and idea(s) and we will get back to you.

Please note that we reserve the right to select the articles for publication.
